

Nuclear Astrophysics and the Bomb

Michael Wiescher, University of Notre Dame

This talk will present the impact of the young field of Nuclear Astrophysics on the development of nuclear weapons. It also will discuss the consequences and sway of research in nuclear weapons during the 1940s to 1970s on the emergence of new and lasting directions in nuclear astrophysics and the whole of nuclear sciences.